Article Writing and Publishing as the Way Out of Google Sandbox to Getting First Page Rank

It may sound like trivial idea to write news, articles, press releases or internet blogs with link back in about author section and publish them on media portals, from where they potentially could be syndicated or simply to say published on other publication sites at the discretion of their editors. But it is what it is and it works. In this small article we would like to share our experience of leaving google sandbox just few days ago and being assigned our first page rank

1. Site registration. We registered absolutely new domain on January 13th and at the same day we published our first PR announcement to have search engines to visit it the following night. Google was the fastest to respond and we tracked googlebot spider, however as you could imagine our website automatically was placed into so-called sand box or in other words long drawer

2. Links and Contents generation. While being in the sand box, we decided this is the best time to beef up our site with relevant materials as well as accumulate large number of linking back pages over the internet. The best strategy to do so is simply sit down each evening and write small article and then post it to up to ten submission sites plus to our own website. This process takes about one hour per day and it brings you approximately one hundred links from completely legitimate pages (articles, news, blogs with photo, video, author logo) with relevant contents, which is by the way is our composition

3. Release from Sand Box. It happened on April 30. At this day our website got it first page rank and it was four in google ranking. By that time we had approximately 27 hundred links from outside and our site name Pegas Planet was found as exact phrase on over six thousand pages

4. Link from page, ranked five. Maybe this contributed to the fact that we got not one, but four in google ranking – we negotiated with Alba Spectrum to get link back from their first page, ranked five

5. Invitation to you, article writer and web site SEO and marketing promoter. At Pegas Planet we do not use syndication, meaning that we do not place something, which was not originally submitted to us. However we have special program and encourage other editors to republish our articles on their portals
